Caring Fathers

a support & education
group fostering positive fatherhood

"Looking for a place to rent after separation I felt like a homeless loser. I had left behind my security, identity and place of belonging. But after a few weeks I began to establish a second home and furnish it in my own special way." BRENT

"There are two wonderful things about all this uncertainty. One is that we can create new ways to father. The other is that we can break the silence of Dads and start talking to our kids and to each other." JOE KELLY

"After parental separation the majority of children surveyed want more quality contact with their fathers for longer periods of time." JOAN KELLY (Researcher, USA)

"When parenting is shared, children make better adjustments and have greater closeness to their fathers." JOAN KELLY

Goals of the Caring Father's Group

- To provide education and information to fathers about parenting, children's needs and how to cope with relationship separation.
- To support men who are genuine in their desire to be more caring and responsible fathers.
- To focus on the safety and welfare of children as the most important issue.
- To provide information about other services available to fathers, and one to one counselling at Home & Family
- To value the role of fathers as parents
- To encourage fathers to take care of themselves and their health
